Kuykendall Gains Support from Long Beach Business Leaders

Long Beach, CA — Former Congressman Steve Kuykendall, a candidate for the newly created 47th Congressional District, has won the support of two former Long Beach Area Chamber of Commerce leaders.

"As a former California State Assemblyman and United States Congressman, Steve has a proven track record of balancing budgets and eliminating government waste while protecting tax dollars," said former Long Beach Area Chamber of Commerce Board Member Barbara Sullivan.

Business owner and former Chair of the Long Beach Area Chamber of Commerce Lori M. Lofstrom added, "Steve Kuykendall is exactly the kind of leader we need in Congress to help create jobs and get this state back on track."

"I'm humbled and honored to have the support of these respected former Long Beach Chamber of Commerce leaders," said Kuykendall. "Both have first-hand knowledge of the consequences excessive federal regulations have on small business owners. In Congress, I look forward to working with them in finding ways to repeal burdensome regulations so local business can thrive and start creating more jobs for Long Beach residents."

Kuykendall continues to gain strong business support from the Long Beach area as well as throughout the 47th Congressional District based as he promotes job creation as his top priority if elected to Congress.

Steve Kuykendall is a former Marine Corps Captain, a businessman, and a former member of the California State Assembly and Congress. He and his wife Jan have three grown children and reside in the City of Long Beach.
